

A common Italian saying is 'new year, new life': we decided to follow it closely bringing Exprezoo to a new life which will be not only digital as it has been up to now but also physical; after all, we are romantic and we still prefer 12" rather than 12MB.

The first artist to see his music engraved in black plastic is our long time favourite duo Alexxei 'n' Nig, which delivers a carefully crafted piece of deep house that sounds like played by an orchestra, with violins, trumpets and a piano and that brings the usual, dubbygroovy feeling of the italo-russian guys to a new, more melodic level.

On the same side we have a remix by Lorenzo Chiabotti aka lenasaw, already known for his release on Vinyl club, which brings out the darker side of the original track by adding a heavier bass and a whole new package of shaking percussions that will wipe away the icy feeling of this winter and turn every dancefloor temperature up to "ultra-hot", while the b-side features no other than Greek top-notch guy Lemos to show us his talent with deep house.

His remix keeps the violins of the original mix and adds a groundshaking reprise halfway through the tune, but above all is an extremely classy track, so classy it will be probably appreciated by the female side of the dancefloor...as if there was something wrong with it!
